

Michelle loved meeting with her Bible study small group but lately she left unsettled. The group had met faithfully for about five years and studied the Bible along with other Christian books that helped them apply God's word to their daily lives. She was so grateful for the group and how it helped her grow in her faith, but now she felt God calling her to other things.

"I want to take all that I've learned and share it with others around the world, you know – missions," she said to her small group leader one day after the group meeting.

The following Sunday at church, her small group leader introduced her to the leader of the Missions Ministry, and she began to go out with the group to share the Word of God and serve those in need.
